TUCUMCARI'S INDIVIDUALITY

As an Outsider Sees the Situation.

A stranger coming to Tucumcari with the intention of remaining here for some time, will not remain long until he begins to notice not only the likeness but also the marked difference existing here compared to that of other towns.

Tucumcari is a very peculiar town, there being no other town like it on the face of the globe.
The peculiar individuality of Tucumcari is due principally to its location and the time the town was founded. Tucumcari was founded at a date which puts it in a class with and at the same time resembles to a certain extent many towns in Western Texas. People coming here from Pennsylvania, New York and other Eastern states may think that by coming to New Mexico they will be in a country inhabited by cut-throats and thieves, but this is not the case.
Tucumcari's location is such that it can not be considered a typical western town, but its inhabitants all work together in perfect harmony, thus giving the place a distinct individuality, of which its people are justly proud.
